County Schools Open Monday, Aug. 31

by Barbara Likowski

Monday, August 31 is the first day of school for approximately 116,000 students in the Prince Georges county school system. Because enrollment is steadily decreasing, more facilities have had to be closed and changes made in others. There are now ten 4 year high schools, nine 3 year high schools, 25 junior high schools, 12 middle schools, 127 elementary schools, 12 special centers and 2 vocational schools.

Last year Greenbelt's Eleanor Roosevelt High School was made a four-year high school. This year change has come to three more city schools. Greenbelt Junior High School has become a middle school for seventh and eighth graders only. Greenbelt North End elementary has been closed and most of its students have been transferred to Greenbelt Center elementary. (See stories elsewhere in this issue.)

Registration

State law requires school attendance by every child between the ages of 6 and 16. Children who will be five years old on or before January 1, 1982 may attend kindergarten. Parents who have not pre-registered their children for kindergarten or to begin school in Prince Georges County for the first time should bring the following: the child's birth certificate (or proof of birth date); record of immunization for children kindergarten through grade 6 (diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles (rubeola) and rubella (German measles); record of rubeola for all students through grade 12; legal proof of residence (settlement papers, rental contract, etc.); student's transfer card or last report card from previous school for students entering above grade 1.

Lunch Costs

Regular lunch prices have increased from 70 to 90 cents in the elementary school and from 75 to 95 cents in secondary schools. Reduced lunches now cost 40c (formerly 20c) and more stringent guidelines will be used to determine eligibility for both reduced and free lunches. The price of milk went from 15c to 25c. Breakfast prices increased five cents to a total of 55c. The cost of reduced price breakfasts jumped from 5c to 30c. These increases, which were approved by the Board of Education at its August 20 meeting, are the result of federal legislation that decreased the federal subsidy for school lunch programs. They do not reflect increased costs in labor, food, etc.

Instruction

The instructional program will continue to focus on programs relating to basic skills. This is particularly evident in the development of curriculum for the new middle schools where students receive more individual attention through team-teaching and other techniques to provide for extended skill and personal development. The county continues its expansion of the basal textbook program which includes a language text with specific writing assignments for each grade level. Concentration on basic skills has led to increasingly higher test scores. In the 1980-81 school year scores increased for reading and comprehensive tests as well as the Maryland functional reading test. The Talented and Gifted (TAG) program will be expanded, especially in the high schools.

The operating budget for the 1981-82 school year is $308.4 million which represents a 6.9% increase over last year. The cost per student, exclusive of transportation, is $2,474. Despite a $3.1 million reduction because of the closing of 22 schools as well as other reductions in staff, streamlining transportation services, etc., inflationary rises in the cost of supplies, fuel, utilities, employee health care, Social Security, etc. made an increase in budget necessary. Improvements such as added teaching positions, increased funds for special programs (ex. TAG) and funding for salary adjustments resulting from contract negotiations with employee unions all added to the increase.

Center School Getting Readied For New School Year As North End Joins Up

by Barbara Likowski

There's an air of expectancy in Center School that one feels as soon as one enters. Principal John VanSchoonhoven and his staff are getting ready for the first day of school — Monday, August 31 — the day two of Greenbelt's elementary schools will be combined. North End elementary has been closed and all of its Greenbelt students and most of its bused students will be coming to Center. The school seems to be bursting at the seams as every classroom is being readied. "It's nice to see the building being utilized," Van Schoonhoven said.

Besides Center's returning staff, seven new classroom teachers, some from North End, will be on hand to greet pupils next Monday. Van Schoonhoven reports that there is a lot of enthusiasm. "New staff bring new ideas . . . new thoughts," Van Schoonhoven added in anticipation of an interesting year.

Anza Manning will be back in kindergarten. So far, a half day kindergarten has been added with Vicki Rooney as teacher. Should more children enroll, Rooney will have two classes. First grade teachers Peggy Foman and Isabel Field will be joined by Kay Jones, who taught second at Center last year. Dixie Binning, along with newcomers Carolyn Anderson and Yvonne Johnson, will teach second grade; Liz Solakian and Marcia Marino will be back in third, as will Janet Pappas. A combination two/three will be taught by Sylvia Garvin. Returning to fourth grade are Barbara Jackson and Arlene Taylor. Janet Miller will teach a four/five and Beth Kessler and Sharon Hoffman, fifth. Newcomer Sarah Sutton will teach sixth grade as will Miriam Gruver and Jim Parham. Carolyn Lubetsky will have a five/six.

Physical Education teacher Stape Shields will be assisted by Nelson Gibson, who will be at Center two days a week. In bad weather they will share the gym. Jean Radspieler will teach music part time and will go from class to class to teach. Dolores Cook will be in the music room again this year.

Center's guidance counselor will be Joan Massino, who comes from North End. Greenbelter Paula Marinelli will be the new health aide. In the office is a new part time secretary, Grace Miles.

Coming from North End also are aides in the "Operation: Moving Ahead" program — June Glesener, Ann Olaker and Marie Chamberlain.

Other staff members returning are Peg Rudd, Roz Efron and Barbara Weeks, special resource teachers, Randy Kosik, reading specialist, Sheryl Joseph, speech, Jean Sullivan, librarian, Mary Gary, hearing, aides Pat Savage, Wendy Geagan, Mae Gingel, Virginia Rich, Shirley Bailey, Mary MacQuillan and Jeff Finkel, and secretaries, Carla Kappas and Mary Hefflebower.

The major emphasis will be on the new reading program. Van Schoonhoven thinks it will be a See CENTER SCHOOL, page 2

Questions Raised About Actions After High Speed Chase Accident

by Elaine Skolnik, Mary Lou Williamson and Bill Rowland

Early on the morning of Friday, August 14, two Greenbelt police officers in separate squad cars, pursued a speeding motorcyclist northbound on Ridge Road. At 4:33 a.m., just beyond the intersection of Ridge Road and Research Road, the lead police car and the motorcycle collided, and the second police car hit the rear of the lead car.

The police report stated that the young man riding the motorcycle then attempted to run, and was apprehended. Nearby residents, however, who were awakened by the crash, contend that the young man appeared to be too seriously injured to walk, much less run. They further allege that one of the police officers repeatedly kicked the young man while he lay on the street and that the officers moved the young man before the nature of his injuries had been determined.

The young man, a Greenbelt resident in his early twenties, was later moved from the scene by Greenbelt ambulance and remained hospitalized for four days.

As a result of a letter from a witness, the News Review staff has gathered information about the crash and its immediate aftermath, both from city officials and a number of eyewitnesses.

The Police Report

Acting City Manager Dennis Piendak and Greenbelt Police Chief William Lane said they were unaware of the eyewitness allegations until the News Review started asking questions. The two officials described the circumstances of the event as presented by the officers in their written report on the vehicle accident, and gave the News Review a copy of that written report.

According to Piendak and Lane, the pursuit of the speeding motorcycle began around Ridge Road and Southway. The accident report indicated that the motorcycle's lights were not on and that speeds of more than 90 miles an hour were clocked during the chase. The report further stated that near the Research Road intersection the young man applied his brakes hard, and the motorcycle went on its side but then righted itself. The young man stayed on the motorcycle for another 40 to 45 feet along Ridge Road until the motorcycle again fell on its side and began to slide. At the first fall, both police officers had locked their cars' brakes. The multiple collision took place when the motorcycle fell for the second time.

It was Lane's understanding that the young man landed on his feet when the motorcycle fell the second time, and that he attempted to run and was restrained. Lane said he was given no indications of heavy resistance by the young man, or of any firmer efforts needed to restrain him.

After his release from the hospital, the young man was charged by the police with eight violations.

Eyewitness Accounts

News Review staff members visited the crash scene at night and found that it is brightly lit by two nearby street lights. Witnesses have alleged to the News Review

CITY NOTES

The general crew backfilled around the headwalls of the new bridge in the Lake Park and set posts at the end of the bridge. The posts will prevent unauthorized vehicles from using the bridge, which is now complete.

The north side of the old pedestrian bridge was barricaded with dirt and a guardrail was installed. Parking spaces and no parking zones were painted in various areas this week. Several traffic control signs were installed.

The regular trash crew was short-handed last week because one member was on sick leave, another on annual leave, and a third resigned. Members of the general crew were assigned to the operation.

Crosswalks and stop lines were painted throughout Greenbelt.

There was general maintenance at Braden and maintenance was done on other ballfields and the Springhill Lake Golf Course. Grass was cut at various locations.

Jaycees to Sponsor Fete For Muscular Dystrophy

RICHARD CASTALDI

RE-ELECT for RE-ELECT COUNCIL

"Unity through Community Participation"

Richard is a lifetime resident of Greenbelt and has served his community by being responsive to citizen and community needs. He has worked hard for developing and planning the Green Ridge House for senior and physically handicapped citizens.

To more adequately address the ever increasing crime problem and deter the rate of increase within the city, Richard supports additional manpower allocations and the rescheduling of patrols to coincide with criminal activity. He has been a strong supporter of bikeways, parkland acquisition, and development for the City.

The current highway proposals are of real concern to Greenbelt, with new major changes affecting both residential and commercial projects. Richard's position as 1979-1980 Chairman of the National Regional Transportation Planning Board will guarantee that Greenbelt's views are given proper consideration.

Richard has nineteen (19) years of Zoning and Planning experience and is an active member of the Council of Governments, with eight (8) years on the Transportation Planning Board and Human Resource Policy Board. He was elected outstanding young American in 1977 by the National Jaycees of America, and was Greenbelt's 1978-1979 State Director.

As Councilman, Richard will continue to use good financial judgment in implementing programs of service for the City.

ALL WORK GUARANTEED

Greenbelt Junior High Will be Middle School

by June Webb

An observant driver traveling along Edmonston Road recently may have noticed County service vehicles parked in front of Greenbelt Middle School. Freshly painted walls will greet students when the school year begins next Monday.

But the physical change occurring in the school is only the beginning of alterations taking place there. Formerly known as Greenbelt Junior High School, it is now Greenbelt Middle School. Under the direction of a new principal and vice principal, the transformation from junior high to middle school is proceeding.

Principal Nicholas J. Poulos was principal at Carole Highlands Elementary School prior to coming to Greenbelt Middle School in June. Vice Principal Dr. Janice Lantz was previously vice principal at Benjamin Foulis Junior High School. Poulos' educational background in curriculum development is being applied as he and Dr. Lantz work on the instructional program and scheduling. Both are enthusiastic about the middle school concept.

Greenbelt Middle is one of ten schools in Prince Georges County opening as middle schools for the first time this fall. They join Thomas Johnson, which pioneered as a middle school last year. Middle schools teach grades seven and eight. Ninth graders attend a four-year high school. Because scheduling in the middle school is not prescribed by ninth grade unit requirements, the middle school time schedule can be more flexible than that in a junior high school.

Administrators closely involved in the middle school program say it holds exciting promise for improvements in student learning. The program is designed to provide a better transition from elementary to high school. The guiding philosophy is to deal exclusively with adolescents so that problems particular to that age group can receive concentrated attention and deficiencies in basic skills can be recognized. The program as adopted in Prince Georges County brings the concept of teamwork to teaching in the seventh and eighth grades.

The program at Greenbelt Middle will operate on an instructional team basis, where an academic "team" of teachers is responsible for the grouping, scheduling and teaching of a group of students. The students will be divided among three "teams." This team concept will make adjustments in a student's schedule easier, allowing him to keep the same teachers, even if his schedule is changed.

The school day will be divided into nine 42-minute periods. Some classes will be taught back-to-back by the same teacher in a double period of 84 minutes. English and reading will be taught one after the other, as will social studies and study skills. Other courses will be math, physical education, science and exploratory foreign language. An exploratory "team" will coordinate and teach art, music, home economics and industrial arts. Average class size will be about 33 students.

Greenbelt Middle will have a TAG (Talented and Gifted) program, as well as SLRD and resource programs. The school, built for 1500-2000 students, will have 500 when school begins. The number is expected to increase to 900 in the 1982-1983 school year when Mary Bethune Jr. High closes and Greenbelt students previously slated to attend there will go instead to Greenbelt Middle.

AN INTRACITY BUS SYSTEM?.....FACT OR FICTION???--Why not a minibus system, linking Greenbelt's three shopping centers and routed through the residential areas--to be financed largely by the business community? This would represent a much needed transportation link for our Senior Citizens and others.

that the following is what took place there after the crash:

The noise of the crash, they noted, was loud enough to awaken nearby residents. Within seconds after the crash, moans and cries could be heard. The young man was lying on his back on the street, approximately ten feet from the motorcycle. He repeatedly cried out that he was hurt. It appeared to one witness that the two Greenbelt police officers forced the young man to roll over onto his stomach, and to extend his hands above his head so that he could be searched. The young man seemed to be trying to raise his head. One of the officers was shouting at him and repeatedly kicked him in the side and "stomped" him with his heel one time.

At some point during the kicking, the officers handcuffed the young man. They took hold of him from behind and lifted him to his feet. The young man cried out in pain. They walked him across the street to a police car, pushed him into the back seat, and left him there by himself. The young man continued to moan and scream.

The police officers eventually went back to the car and removed the young man from the back seat. He appeared to be in a state of shock and unable to walk alone. They walked him to a strip of grass and put him face-down on the grass. A Greenbelt ambulance and fire engine arrived shortly afterward, approximately 15 minutes after the crash.

Three other Greenbelt police cars with four more officers had already arrived quite soon after the crash.

Action by City

Police Chief Lane told the News Review that he would ask the two officers for a more detailed report. He could not speak to the question of how the young man could have attempted to run after the crash if he was so seriously injured that he required four days of hospitalization. Lane added that he would ask the hospital for information about the young man's injuries, as well as for the doctor's opinions as to how the injuries might have been caused. (Lane later told the News Review that the hospital had refused to provide the information.)

Piendak and Lane explained that a Maryland law—the "Law-Enforcement Officers' Bill of Rights"—provides strict procedural safeguards for police officers during any investigation and subsequent hearing which could lead to disciplinary action, demotion, or dismissal. The city officials emphasized that in this present case, the law will not let the police department investigate the allegations of police brutality unless the department receives a signed complaint, witnessed by a notary public. Such a complaint must be from the alleged victim, a member of his immediate family, or an eyewitness, and must be filed within 90 days. Piendak and Lane went on to explain that a person who files such a complaint must be prepared to appear as a witness.

The News Review learned Tuesday that city officials received a notarized letter late Monday afternoon from a witness containing allegations of unnecessary use of force by a police officer. Chief Lane has assigned the case to two detectives within his department for investigation.

(Editor's Note: Most witnesses interviewed by the News Review gave permission to use their names. Names of witnesses, of the young man, or of the police officers involved as provided by Police Chief Lane, however, are not being used in the News Review at this time.)

TOM WHITE

A CONTINUING COMMITMENT:

"The only legitimate purpose of a city is to provide for the life and growth of its people," according to developer James Rouse in the cover story of Time Magazine this week. Of course, we have known this in Greenbelt for quite a while. The challenge, however, is to protect and preserve the unique characteristics that provide those desirable human elements in our town.

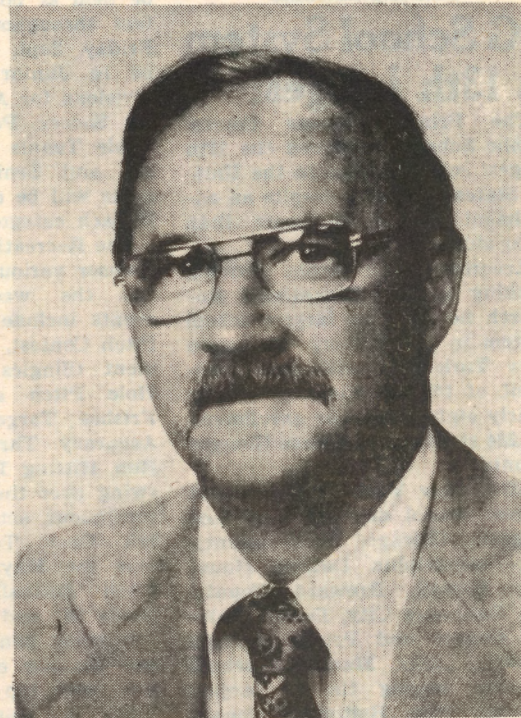

That is why I fought so hard to keep the Post Office in the commercial center; strongly supported the rehabilitation efforts of the GHI community; advocated the B/W Parkway pedestrian overpass; promoted the development of the Northway ballfields in order to relieve the burden on Braden Field; assisted in the formation of the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center; and continue to urge the development of pedestrian/bicycle pathways throughout the city.

I want to continue serving this community by fostering programs and actions that help to maintain the distinctive quality of Greenbelt.

I will need your help on September 15

Changes Slated for T-16

The T-16 Metro bus will be re-routed via Hanover Parkway and Mandan Road and will include a loop through the Greenway Shopping Center. The Metro Board of Directors recently informed the city of these changes. According to Bob Rubin, Metro Transportation Staff, these changes will go into effect in early September. At the same time the T-16 will run through old Greenbelt on the present R12 route. Saturday service will improve to include hourly runs instead of the present 75 minute intervals.

The News Review will print more details of the new scheduling as they become available.

Police Blotter

As a result of a traffic stop, Pfc. DiPietro charged the operator with possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

Four parked cars in Springhill Lake were damaged by someone punching a hole in their tires.

Shoplifting arrests were made at the Shootown Store in the Greenway Shopping Center and at the A&P in the Beltway Plaza.

An apartment on Mandan Road was entered by way of the patio door and items, including a stereo, were reported stolen. An apartment on Cherrywood Terrace was entered by way of a window and cash was stolen. An apartment on Cherrywood Lane was entered without force before the occupants moved in and several items, including TV sets, were reported stolen.

As a result of a traffic stop, Pfc. Kress recovered a stolen motorcycle and took the operator into custody.

A local resident was charged with appropriate traffic charges when he was observed backing his car on Ridge Road at a high rate of speed. The vehicle also failed to stop for a "Stop" sign at Eastway and continued backing until it crossed the center of the roadway, struck a road sign, and came to rest after striking two trees near the Methodist Church. The operator was transported to the hospital for observation. The accident was investigated by Pfc. Watkins.

Two new members of the Department began their employment this week. Hired as a Police Officer is Alex J. Turner, former Air Force Academy Cadet, who holds a B.A. degree in Law Enforcement. Alex, who is single, presently lives in Oxon Hill. The new Communications Specialist is Angelica L. for city council

Bob Zugby is a candidate because: "My wife Dea and I chose Greenbelt as the ideal community in which to raise our daughter Kristina. Our choice was based on the emphasis given to family and spiritual values by the people of Greenbelt. I believe it is my obligation to commit all my abilities to the preservation and strengthening of those values. This commitment, I am convinced, can best be implemented, at this time, by service on the Greenbelt City Council."
